The minutes book dates back to August 22, 1871, Judge Hunter L. Harrish was chairman and C. H. Chilton was secretary. Guill & Crawley Receive Certificates

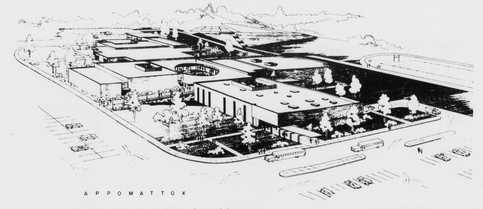
Burke Guill, (2nd from right), for the past twenty years a member of the Appomattox County Selective Service Board, received a certificate and congratulatory letters Wednesday, Dec. 8 from Ernest Fears, Jr., State Director of Selective Service (far left) in special ceremonies in the local Selective Service office. Attending wer (from left): Mrs. Berkley Ferguson (Virginia), county board executive secretary, Mrs. Miriam P. Moore, of Lynchburg area supervisor and (far right), Col. Robert G. Ranson, of Richmond, Chief of Inspection services. Judge C. F. P. Crawley, of Appomattox, who was unable to be present, has also received a twenty-year certificate for his services as government appeal agent. Both men form the 85% of Selective Service volunteers who are not paid employees and who render "a great patriotic service" according to the State Director. Recent changes in regulations call for the replacement of Selective Service board members at the conclusion of twenty years service. "We are indebted to you," said Col. Ranson in brief remarks Wednesday. The certificate for each local man is accompanied by signed letters from the President of the United States, Governor Linwood Holton and Ernest Fears, the State Director.

Supervisors Vote To Fund New School



Action Follows 1968 Vote For Building

The Board of Supervisors, meeting in regular session on Friday morning in the Clerk's office, approved a resolution presented by the Appomattox County School Board requesting the supervisors to issue $2 million in bonds to be sold to the Va. Public School authority.

The supervisors, in effect, gave approval to the securing of funds for a high school to be located on land purchased several years ago adjacent to Road 727 south of the town of Appomattox. Approval to build the school was given by the supervisors on February 9, 1968.

The approved resolution provides a way by which a locality may borrow money at a rate cheaper than funds can be obtained on the open market.

The School Board drew up the resolution in a called meeting on Thursday evening, Dec. 9.

According to Supt. Earl J. Smith, the action by the supervisors will also mean that Appomattox is eligible to obtain $500,000 in vocational funds to assist in the construction of a vocational-agriculture building. He said, further, "We have been assured that funds will be available for a school here if commitments are made to begin construction by July of 1972."

Plans for the new school are complete and have been approved by the State Board of Education.

…ional funds for the …ol, estimated to cost about $3 million, will be obtained through a Literary Fund loan of $500,000, also a low-interest (3%) source of funds for school construction.

Supervisor John C. Coleask-ed the Supt. if the costs of the school are definitely "set". "We do not want to put ourselves in the position of an "escalating" situation," Cole said.

Supt. Smith said that he feels that the figures given for construction are sound ones.

The Supt. thanked the board for its action and added, "I have enough faith in Appomattox county to feel that this new school will lead to a better community."

Welfare Dept.

Supervisors also announced the appointment of Mrs. B. G. Anderson (Ella) to the Appomattox County Welfare Board, Mrs. Anderson, retired home demonstration agent in Appomattox and home management specialist, University of Kentucky for several years prior to her return to Appomattox, replaced Mr. Herbert C. Pulliam, owner and manager of Pulliam Motor Sales, Appomattox. Mr. Pulliam's residence is now in Cloverhill District rather than Southside which he formerly represented. This is a result of the recent redistricting which has brought about other changes in appointive positions in the county.

Other members of the Welfare Board include a supervisor representative, O.H. Tolly, Jr. of Pamplin and Clayton Martin, landowner and farmer.

Kings Super Market Opens In Plaza

Thirteen Is "Lucky Number"

On Monday, December 13, 19-71, exactly 13 years to the day that Ralph King moved to Appomattox, he opened a 13th store with the name Kings above it in red to match the red carpet and "red carpet treatment" which has come to be a trademark of the Kings Supermarket operations.

In the new Kings Super Market at the Triangle Plaza Shopping Center there is space – in excess of 20,000 square feet, and an interior decor which shoppers say is "homelike." There's soft carpet underneath and wide aisles for shopping and a variety of smaller stores within the larger markets to accomodate all kinds of needs for meats, groceries, appliances, health and beauty care, toys, clothing for men, women and children and assorted needs for the home including mirrors, picture frames, cooking utensils and many others.

Exactly 13 years ago – 1958 – Ralph King came to Appomattox, became manager of West End Market, first located in a 35 foot by 70 foot store (now Appomattox Drug Company). Then, two years later King built and moved into West End Market, later Kings, a 14,000 square foot structure on Rt. 460 which has served as a major shopping center until Monday's opening.

The new Kings employs about 23 people, including three to five additional people to provide sales personnel in the specialized departments of appliances, clothing and home needs.

Ralph King says that his produce department, arranged in a semi-circle, as well as the meat department with stand - away meat counters and free - standing meat displays in a similar semi-circular alcove, provides easy access to items in a way that older display methods cannot. This store is one of the first east of the Mississippi to feature this arrangement.

Blue and red are predominant colors in new Kings market. Ralph King calls the decorative wall covering "people and trees", and gaslight fixtures with flickering flames add warmth to the black and white of the murals on the far walls of the market.

For customers there is still the familiar "bag-to-automobile service". Unlike other ma-
